Achievements

I supported the launch and life cycle management of several products from a medical/scientific perspective: acellular pertussis vaccine (monovalent and trivalent) in 1993/95, adjuvanted influenza vaccine in 1997, conjugated meningococcal C vaccine (including Men C campaign in UK) in 1999, conjugated quadrivalent meningococcal vaccine in 2010, men B vaccine in 2014.

Recently, my interests shifted towards vaccine confidence and in particular in the understanding of what support confidence in the public domain when it comes to vaccination.

Skills, Values and Behaviours

I possess high level of energy and a true passion for vaccines. I'm a good team player and enjoy leading diverse teams.

I like intellectual work. I have good scientific communication skills and strong networking ability.

I truly like vaccine world and deeply understand its dynamic.

I have both local and global experience.

My areas of responsibility encompass Public Affairs, Communication and Medical Affairs

I always strive for simplicity.
